For undergraduates, we offer a Bachelor of Arts degree with a broad-based major or minor in music that combines the study of history, theory, composition and performance. The undergraduate major provides a comprehensive music program that does not limit the student's career choice and options.

The track in cultural studies encourages students to develop an understanding of music of various traditions in their cultural and social contexts. Students in this interdisciplinary track select courses in cultural studies from offerings in the schools of creative arts, social sciences and humanities. Additional Resources

Extensive offerings in Anthropology and Near Eastern & Judaic Studies .

Brandeis is also home to MusicUnitesUs, an organization which offers concerts, workshops and short residencies by musicians from around the world. Consortia and Cross-Registration
